LO: We are learning to use fronted adverbials.

Dear Diary,

I have had the most crazy day ever!

Early ^{that} this morning, I heard people whispering. I was astonished! Maybe someone has come to save from this island of danger! I heard them, coming closer to me and my fellow friend, ~~stark stark~~ ^{Squark} the parrot. As the ~~queston~~ weird visitor told me about this myst place called England, I felt very happy. Maybe I'm famous! As me and these mystir mysterious visitors walked, I watched the lizard slither through the grass.

I heard the waves splash against a boat made out of wood. I started to ~~feel~~ ^{feel} ~~never~~ worried and scared. What if these weird people were here to kidnap me?! Above the clouds, the sky ~~bec~~ began to darken, as if there will be a storm, and I knew that ~~what~~ was probably the situation. The wind started to pick up, but only a soft breeze.

As I was on the ship, I saw some restless, filthy cleaners scrubbing the deck and, I felt bad for them. As I stared into the deep, blue ~~see~~ sea, the captain started to walk into in my ~~direct~~ direction. As the sun reached its peak, the captain began to talk, "Lovely day, Jimmy, isn't it?". I nodded my head. "My ~~name~~ ^{name} is ^C Captain Fitzroy," said Captain Fitzroy. I looked at him, happy that someone was ~~there~~ there to guide me. As Captin & Fitzroy ~~sa~~ showed me my room, I could smell rotten fish.

All of a sudd sudden, the rain started to sprinkle. It started to become harder every minute
