Explain why you have chosen dashes and brackets in the highlighted sentences?

I have chosen dashes and brackets because I decided to see what was important and what wasn't.

In a tropical country, that hardly ever rains, stood a small, healthy mango tree. With its luscious, juicy and ripe mangoes, and tiny, strong branches this unique tree was a beautiful view. ^{Site}

The ground was parched and cracked. Everyday, a young woman came out and cared for this plant. She has a brother and a sister-in-law. They lived in a small town, in a small house, with a small garden and the small exotic tree.

One day, the sister-in-law, who was in the little cottage, watched her sister-in-law care for the tree. She thought, Why am I having to do the chores? She should be helping me, not caring for that stupid mango tree. She ^{stomped} went to the sister brother and said, "Your sister is so lazy. She tolls in the garden watering it, weeding it and talking to it." The brother couldn't believe his ears. He was ^{sighed} ^{because} ^{this} ^{was} ^{the} ^{fourth} ^{time} ^{he} ^{had} ^{heard} ^{it}. "Maybe we could marry her off." The wife said, cunningly. Her wife husband couldn't object. ^{- why? because}

She was at a marriageable age.

The ceremony took place and the sister got married. She asked, "Please can you look after my mango tree?" When she was gone, the wife turned red like a tomato and shouted, "She didn't say she would miss us!"

The wife didn't water the mango tree. Then the tree's leaves started to go. While the mango tree was getting worse, the brother started to get ill.

The wife didn't water the plant until it had one brown leaf left. Every day, the brother got sicker and sicker. One day a letter came from the husband's sister. It was of. It said - dearest brother and sister-in-law, how is my mango tree. I hope that my brother and you are okay. Then, the wife sent a letter back

everything
saying every thing is okay - even the mango tree - but she was ~~big~~ lying. She told her the truth about started to grow stronger and larger. As the mango tree started to get its

The sister said, "My brother and the tree share something. A common soul.
I look after both my brother and the mango tree." The ~~my~~ wife had learnt her lesson. If you ~~do~~ care about your ~~stuffs~~ ^{stuffs}, care about
other people's properties too.

How have you shown the wife was getting angry without telling the reader? What impact does this implicit language have?
